Given at School Next
Friday

TWO WOMEN IN CAST

The Narberth Players will present their first vehicle of the 1932-33 season, "Three Wise Fools," in the auditorium of the Narberth Public School next Friday evening, November 18, at 8.15 o'clock.

The play, a three-act comedy by Austin Strong, deals with the trials and tribulations of three old cronies who, nicely settled in well-worn ruts, are jolted out of their placid lives.

The cast is unique in that it includes but two women and eleven men. The feminine parts are taken by Mrs. Faith Farmer and Miss Dorothy Speck, both of whom have appeared in previous productions by the Players.

The male members of the cast are: J. Bedford Wooley, Alan J. Smith, James D. Sutherland, John E. Flynn, John Baker, Elmer E. Lane, Hervey C. Keim, Elmer D. Hackman, Joseph A. Hongler, Jere Gorman and James F. Shannon, Jr.

The three cronies, Theodore Findley, rich and irascible banker; Dr. Richard Gaunt, eminent psychologist; and Judge Trumbull are played by Messrs. Wooley, Smith and Sutherland, respectively. The ardent lover of the play, Gordon Schuyler, nephew of old Findley, is played by Mr. Flynn, a newcomer to the Players. Mr. Baker takes the part of an escaped convict and Mr. Lane is the bank embezzler, John Crawshaw. Mr. Keim plays the part of Detective Poole and Mr. Hongler is Sergeant Clancy. Mr. Shenon is the policeman and the two men servants are played by Messrs. Hackman and Gorman.

The play is being coached by William H. Muller.

The Players' press agent points out that "if you want to learn about 'ruts and mental grooves'—and how

Budget Pruning to Commence Monday

Many Citizens Are Expected to Attend Borough Council Meeting

50% TAX CUT URGED

Work will begin in earnest on the 1933 budget at the November meeting of the Narberth Borough Council on Monday night.

It is expected that there will be a considerable number of citizens in attendance at the meeting who are interested in securing a larger reduction in the Borough tax rate than is contemplated by Council.

A cut of two and possibly three mills; was foreseen as the result of a recommendation of the Finance Committee made at the October meeting.

In a letter to "Our Town" last week, A. E. Wohlert stated that nothing but a reduction of fifty per cent. in the tax rate would satisfy Narberth residents.

Mr. Wohlert stated this week that "no effort would be made to send an organized delegation to the meeting. Such a movement must be spontaneous," he said. "If taxes go down property values will rise. Come early if you want a seat at this meeting."

Preliminary estimates on the 1933 budget have been prepared by chairman of the various committees of Council and submitted to Clarence Kaerber, chairman of the Finance Committee.

Revision of these estimates will begin at Monday's meeting and the budget will be passed on first reading at the December meeting. The budget ordinance will then hold over until the January meeting for passage on second and third readings, at which time amendments may be made.

Anti-Mergerites Meeting

A meeting has been called for Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Legion Room of the Community Building of those residents who are interested in retaining the Borough status for Narberth. "The Other Side of the Merger" will be presented by the Narberth Borough Citizens' Committee.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Lafore, of Penn Valley Farms, are entertaining the Bridlewild Association at a breakfast on Saturday before the drag hunt.

The date and all the interesting details will be announced later.

The first of the sewing meeting was held at the home of Mrs. James D. Moore, on Dudley avenue, last Thursday, and the next sewing meeting will be Thursday, November 17, at

United Campaign to Open on Monday

Total of $258,654 to be Allocated to Main Line
Section

EXPENSES ARE SMALL

A total of $258,654.00 will be allocated to the Main Line relief agencies by the United Campaign which opens on Monday, provided it is successful, it was announced at an organization meeting of chairman and workers held at Green Hill Farms last Thursday night.

Of this total $176,000.00 will be distributed by the Main Line Emergency Committee through its four co-operating agencies. These are the Main Line Federation of Churches, the Bala-Cynwyd Social Service League, the Wayne Neighborhood League, and the Paoli Red Cross.

Other organizations which will share in the relief funds are the Community Health and Civic Association, Ardmore; the Haverford Community Center; the Community Nurse Association, of Berwyn, Paoli and Malvern; Children's Aid Society; Boy and Girl Scouts and Ivy Croft Convalescent Home, Wayne.

Last year in the Main Line district a total of $721,000 was given by 7,500 persons. The total expenses of the United Campaign for the entire year amounted to less than one-third of one per cent. of the amount collected.

W. Logan MacCoy, who presided at last week's meeting, is chairman of the Main Line district, assisted by Alfred C. Maule, vice-chairman for the section from City Line to Bryn Mawr, and Rodney K. Merrick, vice-chairman for the district from Rosemont to Valley Forge.

E. F. Cobb Tells How Cement is Manufactured

The history of Portland Cement, with a vivid description of the methods by which it is manufactured, formed the topic Tuesday of a talk by Edward F. Cobb, of Merwyn road, Merion, before the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club.

Mr. Cobb traced a bag of cement from its original form in the shale rocks to the completed product. The process, involving close chemical supervision, is an intricate and expensive one.

Rock containing lime and clay is first ground to a powder finer than flour, Mr. Cobb said, and then burned in a kiln at a temperature of 2700 degrees. The clinkers formed, of excessive hardness, are then ground in heavy and expensive machinery to form cement. Six hundred pounds of rock must be used to make a barrel of cement, he said.

Despite his failure in the nation Hoover carried the Borough of Narberth by 1111 votes at the general election on Tuesday. Hoover's vote was 1701 to 590 for Roosevelt.

Handsome majorities were also given to the Republican ticket with Representative Fred C. Peters and J. William Ditter, Congressman-elect, having wide margins over their Democratic opponents. Peters polled 1558 votes to 597 for Burns, while Ditter rolled up a two and one-half to one majority over Philip C. Pendleton, Democratic and Liberal candidate. Ditter's vote was 1541 to 644 for Pendleton.

In the vote for U. S. Senator, James J. Davis won handsily with 1518 votes to 646 for Lawrence H. Rupp, his Democratic opponent. Edwin J. Pithian, Prohibition candidate, showed unexpected strength, polling 128 votes.

In the County Mr. Ditter received nearly a 30,000 majority over Pendleton with but two of the 182 districts missing, his vote being 60,896, with 33,253 for his Democratic opponent.

Peters received an 8,000 majority in the First Legislative district, piling up 14,098 votes, with all but two districts complete.

Republican workers in the Borough expressed satisfaction over the majorities given Hoover and the Republican ticket. In the Second and Third Districts Hoover led by three to one, but his majority in the First District was only two to one.

Democratic leaders, on the other hand, were satisfied in that Roosevelt received a larger vote than was given to Alfred E. Smith in 1928, making it the largest Democratic vote ever polled in Narberth.

Smith received 539 votes and Hoover 1823 in 1928.

Adherents of Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate, also had cause for satisfaction, as he received the largest Socialist vote yet polled in the Borough. The 47 Thomas votes also carried through to a large extent for the other Socialist candidates, Van Essen receiving 47 and Mary Winsor, 46.

One of the surprises of the election was the speed with which the ballots were counted in the Second District, where the heaviest vote, over 1000, was cast. The returns from this district were completed about 10 o'clock, while the First and Third were finished before eleven.

Despite the inclemency of the weather the vote cast in Narberth approximated that cast in 1928. There were 2341 Presidential votes cast Tuesday for four candidates and 2362 for Hoover and Smith in 1928.

The Narberth boys had several chances to score in the opening period, as McGarry intercepted passes or Whittingham crashing off tackle placing the ball deep in the opponents' territory, but due to fumbles they lost chances. Late in the initial quarter

Business Council Plans Decorations for Christmas; Hopes to Aid Narberth's Poor

Plans for an illuminated Christmas display on Haverford avenue and for aid to Narberth's unemployed were made at a dinner meeting of the Narberth Business Council, held at Esham Manor Inn, Montgomery pike, near Wynnewood, Wednesday night.

The meeting was attended by thirty-half the membership. The evergreens and lights will be placed along Haverford avenue from the Narberth National Bank to Narberth avenue, and up that street to the theatre, the same as last year. The cost is partially covered by funds in the treasury, and in addition members are expected to pay dues that will leave a surplus.

Following a plea by Squire Fred Walzer, it was voted that part of any surplus after payment of decorations, be given, at discretion of the Executive Board, to aid the Christmas fund for Narberth's unemployed. This may amount to over a hundred dollars. It was decided to open a new class of members, for business people of the Borough who do not maintain shops in the Haverford avenue section. For these, the dues will be six dollars a year, as compared with the

Young Priest

It was a pleasant place for quiet thought, but just what to think about The Vagrant could not at the moment decide. The spot-light on the marble statuette over the altar did produce the effect intended, but, after all, it was a spot-light; no more, no less. The gothic arches, dimly vaulting into the upper shadows, were interesting, rather satisfying, on the whole, but The Vagrant could not recall at the moment how the Trinity interior rated architecturally. As he gazed up at the arches, he felt a rumbling tremor and was reminded that probably sub-surface trains were running deep under where he was sitting. Unpleasant! He thought with visions of very old gothic arches enduring modern vibration! The Vagrant got up at once. On his way out, his attention was attracted to a small alcove in which a single electric light illuminated a table and the pale face and clerical collar of him who was seated there. A sign on the table announced that a priest would be there during certain hours every day "for consultation." One layman was consulting him at the moment. The face of that priest seemed to The Vagrant to be too young; too unmarked by living life. All his blacks would be black and his whites, white, no doubt, with no place in his outlook for the middling gray which color so much of human conduct. No, The Vagrant would not care to consult him professionally regarding either soul or body. So he hurried out to the busy street, where he found his business ego waiting for him. Quite contentedly and without a word they merged again and amicably set off together to find something to eat.

Praises Mr. Albrecht
To the Editor of "Our Town":
Your admirable article on the 50th Anniversary of the Albrecht's Nurseries tells all too little of the real nurseries this splendid citizen has cultivated.
It does not tell of the charities and human reconstruction work of the subject of your sketch—of elderly women whose entrance into Homes was paid by this Nursery Managers, into whose life new hope was planted by transplantation into the hot house of a Home.
Your sketch does not tell of the Community House erected on Righer's Ferry road by Mr. Albrecht, which kept many a young man from evil habits and nurtured an upright spirit in him, keeping his life in proper courses. Your article does not tell of his water can full of kind words—cheering words and waterings with hard cash many a needy person. Your article does not tell of quiet words soothing family irritations in his neighborhood. It does not tell how sympathetically the nursery of good actions was nurtured.

Next week-end's feature needs little publicity; it has been widely hailed as the super-film. In the cinematic rendition of Vicki Baum's novel, "Grand Hotel," are John and Lionel Barrymore, Joan Crawford, Greta Garbo and Wallace Beery. Not to be missed, and worth seeing again.

For Wednesday and Thursday the Narberth management offers well-gowned, beautifully suffering Cora Bennett in "Two Against the World."

We Do More Than Repair Shoes

(This is the second in a series of FOOT FACTS AND FOOT NOTES. Watch for the next, December 2. Last month we pointed out the importance of the shoe rebuilder being able to recognize foot troubles by means of the condition of shoes brought him to repair, and being able to advise customers on foot care.)

FOOT CARE SHOULD BEGIN IN CHILDHOOD

It is safe to assume that the great majority of foot defectives were born with strong normal feet; most defects are the result of lack of proper care by parents in infancy. Examination of school children has revealed 80 per cent. of girls and 65 per cent. of boys had definite foot troubles. The slight deviations and abnormalities of these children's feet are being made to yield to treatment. Taken at a more advanced age, when the bone structure and cartilage of the feet had become harder and more brittle, these defects would have been far more difficult to correct.

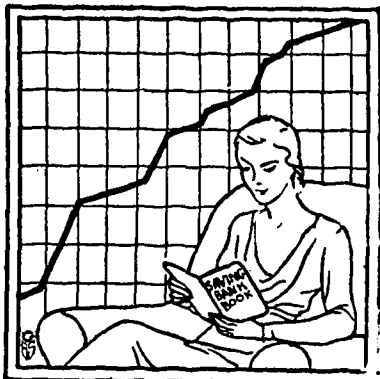

BECAUSE A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF FOOT ILLS

is due to wearing shoes that do not fit, children's shoes should be purchased with care, and kept in good repair. Sensitive bones of the feet are cramped and misshapen inside ill-fitting shoes, and ultimately as the resistance of the muscles wears down under the constant strain, the arches give way. The strain is conveyed to the legs, hips, and back, frequently resulting in general nervous disorders. That is why care of the feet should not be delayed, but should be begun in infancy. Necessarily, the parent is charged with this responsibility.

First Story Hour on Monday to be "Party"

The first story hour of the season under the auspices of the Narberth Library will be held on Monday afternoon, November 14, at four o'clock. The first meeting after the long vacation is so much anticipated by the children that Miss Church has arranged to make of it a festive occasion. It will be what the children themselves call a "party." A table with candles and flowers, cups and saucers and plates, trays of cookies and cakes, and urns of something to drink.

Through the kindness of Mrs. Wm. B. Goodall, a member of the Board of Trustees, who will take charge of the circulating desk at this time, it will be possible for Miss Christ to give assistance on this special occasion. The usual time will be devoted to story-telling, and Miss Church has arranged a very interesting program of stories to engage the attention of the children. And all children are welcome. Four o'clock, Monday the 14th, at the Library.

Funeral for A. R.
Justice Held Monday

Noted Genealogist Died Last Friday at Narberth Home

AUTHOR OF MANY BOOKS

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon for Alfred Rudolph Justice of 406 S. Narberth avenue, Narberth, who died last Friday night. Burial was at Laurel Hill Cemetery. He was in his 76th year.

A noted genealogist, Mr. Justice was the author of several volumes on genealogy and was a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania, the Society of Genealogists of London and the Monthly Meeting of Friends, Philadelphia.

Born in West Philadelphia, February 9, 1857, the son of the late Alfred Humphries Justice and Mrs. Susan Humphries McIlvain Justice, his ancestry dated back to the associates of William Penn.

As a young man, Mr. Justice was associated with his father in the wholesale cutlery and silverware business of A. B. Justice and Co. The firm today is known as A. R. Justice and Co., and Mr. Justice's brother, F. Millwood Justice, is president.

Mr. Justice retired from the firm many years ago to devote his attention to other interests in this country and Santo Domingo. In late years he has devoted his entire time to genealogical research.

In 1892 Mr. Justice married Miss Jessie Lewis. He is survived by his wife; a son, Philip Syng Justice, of Beaumont, Texas; two daughters, Mildred Lewis Justice and Mrs. George D. Collins, of Hammonton, N. J.; a sister, Mrs. Henry P. Canby, of San Fernando, Calif., and his brother, F. Millwood Justice, of Narberth.

The Literary Inquest

Conducted by Richard Powell

People who dislike adulatory book reviews are hereby urged to erect temporary bomb-proof shelters of cynicism. The occasion is E. Alexander Powell's "Yonder Lies Adventure" (Macmillan, $3. Published October 24th). For while "Yonder Lies Adventure" is not the long-awaited Great American Novel, it is the best story of travel and adventure that we have been privileged to read since T. E. Lawrence's "Revolts in the Desert." It is a spicy breeze, cutting through the musty odor of offices and cobwebbed factories.

Every once in a while the wheels and cogs of modern civilization throw off a spark: a man who refuses to be pigeonholed in some safe job. Such men go everywhere, see everything, but seldom do they have the gift of words to tell about it. Colonel Powell does. In this book he relates his experiences up to the outbreak of the World War, which he was to observe as a war correspondent and as an officer in the A. E. F. He was a consul in Turkey during the crimson reign of Abdul Hamid; he was waylaid by Italian bandits and captured by Bedouins. In his million miles of wandering he shot boar with the Duke of Lichtenstein, hunted tiger with maharajas, and took tea with the last of the cannibal kings. Less exciting but just as interesting are his Pickwickian descriptions of business leaders in his native Syracuse of the Golden Nineties.

"Yonder Lies Adventure" is a condensation from Colonel Powell's eleven travel books, bound together by the thread of his career and adorned with vivid anecdotes. The author is our idea of what Halliburton would be if Halliburton's adventures were not synthetic, what Seabrook would be with a better sense of humor, and what Floyd Gibbons would be if he possessed a good English style.

"Ill Wind," by James Hilton. (Morrow, $2.50. Published November 10th.)

During the Golden Twenties people would have avoided this book, with its emphasis on the meaninglessly coincidental nature of life, as they might have avoided a particularly unpleasant ghost. For while we may presume that James Hilton is quite corporeal, there is a spectral horror in this story that is laid in our present-day world of depression. Probably "Ill Wind" could not have been written during prosperous years. Its ideas are a product of contemporary thought; it presents a philosophy of negation and tired cynicism.

We emphasize this gloomy undercurrent lest it pass unnoticed. Superficially, Hilton's book is a series of swift-moving episodes; tragedy, comedy and adventure rub shoulders in its pages. A small uprising in the Far East flings a thin chain of coincidence around the world. It alters the life of a business man in England, an actress in Hollywood and a reporter in South America until at last it nearly wrecks a peace conference.

Few faults exist in Hilton's satirically brilliant style. He has missed producing a great book by only a slight margin: the difference between cleverness and humanity. His characters are too standardized in their types to come fully alive against their sweeping background. To those readers who demand a movie ending, "Ill Wind" will appear most dissatisfying, but from that very aimlessness of plot it draws its power.

Hearsay Evidence
(This item is very much off the beaten track, but we'll admit it for its political angle.) A double set of the "Gasoline Alley" cartoons had to be furnished by the distributing syndicate when Republican newspapers protested that the strip was carrying too much Democratic propaganda. Well, well... soon we'll be suspecting the motives of Mickey Mouse.

By ROBERT J. EDGAR

"And the spring arose on the garden fair
Like the spirit of love, felt everywhere."
—Shelley.

And what of our garden of spring? Faded and frost-deadened stems cut down. Weeds removed. Hardy bulbs planted. Old plants cleaned, divided and re-set. Perhaps the entire beds, or borders, have been turned over, the soil fertilized, and all the plants re-planted. New roses planted. New shrubs and trees ordered for planting before the ground becomes hard frozen. Autumn is the time to build the hardy garden and spring is the time to enjoy it.

Only six weeks until the shortest days—and then the seed catalogs of another year.

That good forsythia, that you admired this spring, was Forsythia intermedia Spectabilis. Intermediate meaning intermediate in form and habit—not pendulous and not too tall, but just right. Spectabilis meaning showy, with full flowers of good color. The varieties suspensa and Fortunei are the older forms and fast being replaced by the improved variety.

The second-earliest showy spring shrub is the flowering almond, listed under Prunus or amygdalus, offered in pink or white, and never grows very tall.

Kolkwitzia amabilis, also called the Beauty Bush, is perhaps the finest deciduous shrub that has been introduced into American gardens in many years. It flowers about June first, the drooping branches are covered with pink flowers and the plant seems to be beetle-proof, which is very much in its favor. If you only add one new shrub—get Kolkwitzia.

For late summer and autumn the choice shrub is Abelia chinensis Grandiflora. Pretty pink bells, clean glossy foliage—almost evergreen and goes with broad-leaved evergreens.

While the red chokeberry, Aronia arbutifolia, is not among the showiest of spring-flowering shrubs, it more than makes up in its brilliant autumn color of foliage and fruit. A fine companion for the brilliantly colored dogwoods.

Pachistima Canbyi is called Mountain Lover, which means little, but for an evergreen plant for rock gardens in sun and shade it fills a place all its own. Not showy in flower, it is outstanding in winter, it lays close to the ground, and just naturally fills the space in between rocks to carry on when the herbaceous plants have died back. An unusual plant, but there is nothing that can take its place for evergreen in the rock garden. A native of our Southern mountains, where many wonderful plants are found for Northern gardens.

When in doubt as to whether to force bulbs in soil, pebbles or water—decide on bulb fibre. This convenient material is a blessing to those who like to grow bulbs indoors. Take sufficient fibre to half fill the bowl, soak the fibre and then squeeze the excess water out, arrange the bulbs in the fibre, water the fibre again and pour off the excess water. Place the bowls in a cool dark place until the bulbs have made a good root growth; it is easy to see the roots with the fibre. Then place the bowls in daylight, but not in full sun. When the foliage has made a fair growth the bowls may be placed in full sun to finish their flowering. There are three stages in forcing bulbs—first, cool, moist darkness to make roots; second, mild heat with light to make foliage, and third, heat and sunlight to make bloom. Without a good root growth the bulb cannot flower well, so that the first stage is the all important one.

And now we come to appreciate the evergreen wood fern, Christmas fern, ebony spleenwort and polypody—all evergreen—when the other ferns have faded away.

Review Japanese Book
The Literature Group of the Women's Community Club of Narberth met on Tuesday afternoon at the annual convention of the State Federation. Mrs. Harold Griest, of Merion avenue, is very anxious to hear from any girls who would care to join.

November 26th is a very special date on the Junior calendar. There is to be a Fall Dance, in charge of the Finance Committee, Miss Alberta Davis, chairman, and it is assumed that the successful dance of last spring's program will set the mark for this second affair. The Legion Hall, so attractive in its comfortable setting, will be the scene of the dance, and good music has been secured, as well as a special entertainment feature, which will be announced as a grand surprise later. We suggest early reservations, so that you need not be one of the stay-at-homes on such an important occasion. A great many college students will doubtless be home for that week-end, and they can be assured of an evening of fun and enjoyment at little expense.

The Welfare Committee is planning on some definite program of assistance to a particular family or families. Mrs. Clifford Goodwin, chairman of this work, is investigating to find opportunities for the club's social service activities and it is assured that much will be done along this line, particularly for the Christmas season.—J. Walter D. Fuller is chairman for the campaign in Penn Valley.

Headquarters for the Main Line Division has been opened at 33 Rittenhouse Place, Ardmore, under the direction of Miss Joan Wollaston whose services have been loaned to the campaign by the Community Health and Civic Association.

The total expenses for this year will be under $1700, as all of the workers are volunteers with the exception of one full time and one part time stenographer.

The goal of the campaign this year is $6,000,000; $3,600,000 of which goes to the Welfare Federation, $1,400,000 to the Federation of Jewish Charities, and $1,000,000 to supplement the unemployment relief funds from State and Federal sources to Philadelphia and vicinity.

Decision was also made to hold three regular dinner meetings a year: in spring, autumn, and in January, when officers are to be elected.

President Ralph S. Dunne praised Marios Chios for his work in arranging all details of the meeting Wednesday, at which an attendance of forty-five had been promised. Entertainment arranged by Mr. Chios consisted of songs by Miss Catharine Getz, soprano and pianist; William Basso, tenor and guitar player; and Thomas A. Elwood, baritone.

to avoid them—listen to the advice of the 'eminent psychologist' and then see what happens when the right kind of 'tonic emotion' comes along. For those who must have 'meller-drammer' there's some of that, too, and, of course, there is plenty of 'love interest' and romance. The ingredients of a good play are all there."

And he adds, "By the way, the Players invite memberships. For 'two-fifty' you get two tickets for each of the three plays given during the year; and there are very enjoyable monthly meetings, largely social, although President Green does get some business transacted. Maroon Gridders Meet Upper Darby Saturday

Visitors Have Good But Unimpressive Record for Season

SERIES STARTED IN 1921

The only lull in the football storm, so far as Lower Merion is concerned, comes tomorrow afternoon when the Maroon horde meets Upper Darby in a gridiron contest on Pennypacker Field. Upper Darby has a good record to date, not impressive, but successful so far as wins are concerned. Victories over Media and Wilmington cannot be discounted, especially the latter, for Wilmington defeated Abington, 14 to 0, and the entire Lower Merion team will admit that Abington was one tough foe to defeat.

Norristown defeated Upper Darby three touchdowns, and Lower Merion in turn defeated Norristown by three touchdowns, but that does not mean that the Maroon team is six touchdowns better than the boys from Rah! Rah! Updahl! Far from it.

A team is never mentally the same on different days. Upper Darby will play its heart out to defeat Lower Merion, while the same lads may not care two hoots about a victory over Norristown.

It behooves the men of Adam to gird their loins for another stiff ball game tomorrow afternoon and to go into the game with an alert mind and ready muscles, for the visiting foe will be no set-up.

If our memory does not betray us, Upper Darby first played Lower Merion back in 1921, when the Maroon jerseys ran rough-shod over said team 55 to 0. Since that first game the going has been one of continuous victories for the Merionites. The largest score of the series was rung up in 1923, when Derham, the Sculls, Peterson and many others ran amuck to pin the Updahs, 71 to 0. In later years Adam's teams have had a hard time getting the upper hand over this team. In 1928 Warren Lockwood barely saved the Maroon cause by scoring a touchdown and blocking a punt for a safety, final score being, 8 to 7. Last season Herb Thomas was the shining light in the Merionites' 13 to 0 conquest.

Sub Juniors Plan Membership Campaign

The greater part of the Sub Junior meeting, held on Monday, was devoted to making plans for the next meeting, which will take place on November 21st. Mrs. Chase co-operated by discussing with us the plans made by the Juniors for the coming winter, thereby giving us many helpful suggestions.

It was decided to make a drive for members, dividing into two teams, the Red and the White. The old members will be asked to renew their memberships by paying their dues of one dollar each. The treasurer, Muriel Wales, will collect the money and divide the members into teams. The members will be alternated in the order of their payment of dues. These teams will compete for the larger number of new members; the losing group to treat the victorious team.

Our next meeting will be held at Dora Miller's house and will be a "pot-luck supper," followed by a brief session, at which time plans will be made for the coming year. The remainder of the evening will be spent playing cards and dancing.

INGEBORG THEYSEN,
Corresponding Secretary.

Narberth Girl Scouts Plan Many Activities

The meeting of the Narberth Girl Scout Troop, No. 8, this week was very quiet, as compared to the uproarious time on the previous Tuesday, when we had our Hallowe'en Party. Everyone came in costume and repeated the Scout Promise at the door as identification. Catherine Bailey was chosen as the wearer of the prettiest costume, Nancy Mackenzie as the funniest, and Betty Seasholtz as the cleverest. The usual Hallowe'en games were played, with amusing results, and the refreshments were varied and delicious. We told ghost stories around the open fire.

Our meeting this week was devoted to the needs of others, many of them possible future Girl Scouts. Each Girl Scout attempted to finish hemming a diaper, given us by the Welfare Federation through Mrs. Downs. This is one of our contributions to the Welfare Work in this district.

While the hemming was going on much discussion took place in the circle. The girls are seriously considering the selling of tickets for the Children's Plays, given by the Theatre Guild. It will be an excellent way of earning money for the Troop Fund, as each girl will be given ten per cent. on each ticket she sells.

Another scheme for the benefit of our Troop was considered, namely, the selling of subscriptions for "The American Girl," the official Girl Scout magazine. If ten subscriptions are sold, the Troop will be given a tea set bearing the Scout monogram. In the event we are able to double or triple that number of subscriptions, we will add to our set of china.

We learned two new songs in the circle. "You Can Dig My Grave With a Silver Spoon" and "Down By the Old Mill Stream" have been added to our repertoire.

The Troop is very much in need of a strong box or trunk in which to keep its possessions in the Scout room. If anyone cares to donate such a container, we could paint it and emblazon our insignia thereon, and that kind person would earn our everlasting gratitude.

The Scribbler, INKY.

Narberth Registers 5th Grid Victory

ter Whittingham got loose on a reverse that placed the ball on the opponents' twenty-yard line. Aigledinger on the next play skirted left end to place the ball on the five-yard line, Whittingham made four yards through the centre of the line, where Aigledinger crossed the final stripe. His try for the point was wide.

Kensington, after the first half, came back gamely and marched the ball from their thirty-yard line to tie the score. With Enyard running the ball for long gains the ball was placed on the hometowners' twenty-yard line, where Hackman tossed a pass to Burns for the visitors' score, but Enyard's try for the point was blocked.

The Narberth boys kept fighting until they reached the opponents' twenty-five-yard line, where McGarry tossed a pass to Cunningham, who ran to the three-yard line before being brought down. Aigledinger, on two tries, again crossed the final line to give his team the lead, as Harris placed-kicked the point.

Narberth threatened twice more in that final frame, as Harris got off on a sixty-five yard line placing the ball on the opponents' twenty-yard line, but fumbled to lose the ball. Again the hometowners lost a touchdown as Parks dropped a pass with a clear field ahead. In this period the visitors were not able to come past the hometowners' twenty-yard line.
